Winners of first prize in that contest had seventy-four of the seventy-seven correct titles, submitting 68 answers.

Winners of second prize submitted seventy-three correct and made 65 answers in all. Winner of third prize (a man whose statement is quoted above) had seventy-three correct also, and used 63 answers in all.

Had the winner of third prize, not been so keen about "eliminating" or cutting down, the total numbers of answers submitted he would have submitted the seventy-five correct answers that his ingenuity and common sense had worked out. And that would have brought him first prize.

That man cheated himself out of submitting his best efforts. His idea, however, was to submit as few answers as possible, with the thought that the more the correct answers were likely to prove the correct titles represented by the pictures. He probably thought that, in case his set contained exactly the same number of correct answers as another set that he would gain precedence by submitting the smaller number of correct answers.

Married in Baltimore.
Mr. Anastasi Taylor, of Chicago, Ill., announces the marriage of his daughter, Wilhelmina Cleland, to Roy Davis Thompson, on Wednesday, September 17. After October 1, Mr. and Mrs. Thompson will make their home in Richmond.

Mrs. Esther E. Brewington, of Hannibal, Missouri, and Dr. Peter Prentiss Casey, of Washington, N. C., were married at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. C. B. Warren, 2449 Maryland Avenue, Baltimore, on Wednesday, September 17, at 12 noon. The bride wore a navy blue traveling gown with a corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley, and was attended by her cousin, Miss Mary Esther Warren, who carried a Colonial bouquet of pink roses. Miss Elizabeth Smithson and Miss Margaret Bell, wearing white frocks with pink sashes, held the bride. The groom's best man was his brother, James Casey, Jr., of Wallace, N. C., and the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Page Dame, rector of the Memorial Episcopal Church in Baltimore. Miss Mary (Clara) Casey, the bride, was a daughter of the late George H. Casey, and also accompanied Miss Jennie Brewington, the bride's sister, who sang "I Love You 'All Love You," during the ceremony.

A buffet luncheon was served following the ceremony, and Misses Dorothy Conable, of Memphis, Tenn.; Elizabeth Herring, of Baltimore; Mrs. George Schumann, Miss Bell Packer and Mrs. Alan Miller assisted in the dining-room. Mr. and Mrs. Casey left later for a brief honeymoon in the North, after which they will occupy their cottage at Wrightsville Beach, N. C., until after October 15, when they will be at home at the Carolina Apartments in Wilmington.

The groom, who is a son of the late James Casey, of Suffolk, graduated from the Maryland Medical School in the class of 1907, and has continued the practice of his profession, and is now engaged in other business.

The following out-of-town guests were present: Mrs. George F. Barton, of Suffolk; sister of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. James Casey, Jr., of Wallace, N. C.; Miss Louise Brewington, of Hannibal, Missouri; Miss Alice Bell, of Toronto, Canada; Miss Nancy Brian and Dr. Robert Crawford, of Rocky Mount, N. C.; Mrs. Max F. Millikan, of New York City; Stiff-Nelson.

The marriage of Miss Arrie Mary Nelson, of George, in the County of Middlesex, was celebrated at the Amisville Baptist Church at High noon on Wednesday, September 17. The bride entered the church with her father, Mr. William R. Nelson, by whom she was given in marriage, and Miss Sallome Stiff, the maid of honor, wore a gown of white chiffon trimmed in pearls and carried a bouquet of pink roses. The groom, Mr. F. Nelson, wore a green chamoise and lace, and the two flower girls, who preceded the bride, carried bouquets of pink roses. Little Misses Arrie and Sallome, who were bridesmaids, were dressed in white chamoise and lace. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Charles Clement, assisted by M. F. Sanford, of Stuart, and just before the entry of the bride and her attendants, Miss Arrie Nelson, of George, sang "I Love Thee." The ushers were Messrs. V. E. Nelson, W. Rufus Nelson, J. R. Nelson and Joseph L. Nelson, all brothers of the bride.

The bride's wedding gown was fashioned of white chamoise and Oriental lace, finished in pearl trimmings, and her only ornament was a pearl brooch, the groom's gift. Her tulle veil was arranged with orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of white roses. The church was decorated for the occasion in golden red and ferns, against a background of potted plants. Mr. and Mrs. Stiff left later for an extended Northern tour, after which they will make their home at Harmony Village.

SCHOOLS FOR "JACKIES"
Secretary Daniels Would Give Seamen Training for Civilian Life.

Washington, September 18.—Secretary Daniels will extend to every ship in the navy the system of instruction for apprentice seamen in common school study and advanced technical branches, which he recently established at naval training schools. Secretary Daniels, in his object in establishing the floating schools was to encourage every enlisted man to choose some branch of study, and to give him the opportunity to do so. The system of instruction, said Secretary Daniels, "ought to convince the people at large that the man in the navy is not excluded from the opportunity to receive a liberal education, and that the man in the navy is not only physically and mentally, but in many practical ways, is better equipped for life. In other words, the new plan is calculated to convince both the men and their next of kin that the man in the navy is not only a trained sailor, but a trained citizen, and that service offers an educational advantage to those who enlist."

Kept Marriage Secret One Year

SAMUEL H. DEAN, formerly Miss Ivanhoe Puckett.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Ivanhoe, Va., September 18.—Cards were issued today by John H. Puckett, announcing the marriage of his only daughter, Miss Ivanhoe Virginia Puckett, to Samuel H. Dean just one year ago, during which time the matter had been kept a profound secret, known to less than a dozen people, and a few of them, including the bride's father, being not informed until recently. The whole matter was cleverly planned and carried out by the young couple. Last September Miss Puckett, accompanied by her father, went to Roanoke to do shopping, before re-entering Martha Washington College, at Abingdon. She left her father at Roanoke, according to agreement, and started back to Abingdon. Instead of stopping there, however, she managed to pass through without being seen by those who were expecting her, and went on to Bristol, Tenn. Mr. Dean and McTeer Painter, a mutual friend, also of Ivanhoe, boarded the same train en route, and joined Miss Puckett, when they arrived at the border city, they hastened to the home of Magistrate Harry Swan, to whom they applied for a marriage license. The young couple, with the necessary license, and proceeded to the home of A. C. Keebler, 1112 Anderson Street, where they were married by the Rev. T. H. Wolfe, D. D., pastor of Anderson Street M. E. Church, South.

Soon after the marriage, the party procured an automobile and hastened to Fleet, a small station east of Glade Spring, where the bride took the next westbound train for Abingdon.

Mr. and Mrs. Dean left here this morning for a trip East and North. They will be at home here after October 10.

FOREIGN VETERANS MEMBERS OF LEGION

Origin Due to Prussian Field Marshal Blucher in September, 1815.

BY LA MARQUISE DE FONTENAY.

POPULAR belief to the effect that the much-discussed Foreign Legion of France was first formed in 1831, with the object of utilizing the services of those foreigners who sympathized with France in her attempt to conquer Algeria, is erroneous. The legion owes its origin to the Prussian Field Marshal Blucher, or, rather, it was created at his instance, on September 6, 1815.

Field Marshal Blucher was then still at Paris with the Duke of Wellington and the allied armies, after the defeat of Napoleon at Waterloo. Napoleon, during his reign of a hundred days, after his return from Elba had enlisted eight or ten foreign regiments, composed of Bavarian, Saxon, Wurtemberg and other veterans of his former grand army. Realizing that their return to their native land was open to many objections, hatred of Napoleon and of everything and everybody who had been connected with him being intense in Germany, Blucher suggested to the French government that the foreign veterans should remain on as a distinct corps of the French army, retaining their own officers. This was done, and the command was intrusted to Prince Louis von Hohenlohe Bartenstein, who had served as a general under Napoleon prior to 1814, and who later on was advanced by Louis XVIII to the rank of a field marshal of the French army.

On the formation of the corps a number of Prussian and English men and officers sought and obtained the permission of the French government to join their respective governments, as they realized that with the impending era of peace, there would be wholesale reductions in the armies of all the countries, and that those whose services were retained, promotion would be terribly slow. That is how the foreign legion of France came into existence.

It is perfectly true that when the Algerian campaign was first started, the foreign legion was used in subjugating the natives there, and ever since it has been almost constantly employed, either in Africa or in the Far East. Indeed, France today is largely indebted to the Foreign Legion for the possession of her vast African empire and for her great dependencies in Cochinchina and Tonking.

While service in the legion is arduous, it offers enough advantages to attract all sorts of head-headed men, notwithstanding all that has been published against it, mainly in the German newspapers and in articles translated into foreign papers from the German press.

Those who serve in the legion gives a foreigner the right to French citizenship without any other formality. At the end of five years the legionary can enlist anew in the Colonial Infantry or in the Foreign Legion, receiving a bounty and increased pay. Fifteen years of service in the French army entitles a soldier to a pension.

A number of the soldiers of the legion have previously served twenty years in the Foreign Legion of Holland, in the Dutch East Indies, receiving a pension in addition to their bonus on enlisting. If the legionary then puts in another five years in the French army
